

THE MURDER.
The Wife visits her Husband in Prison.
The following very affecting passage is extracted from the forthcoming novel of Mr. Thomas, of Cincinnati, entitled "Howard Pickney." It is now in the press of Messrs Lee & Blanchard. It is quite thrilling. And we have been permitted to give our readers a specimen in advance by those gentlemen. — Gordon, the husband, it will be observed, has been imprisoned, his last offence having been that of counterfeiting. Gordon lay upon his mattress on his prison floor in a state of partial intoxication. Through the window, Tom Fenton, who had secreted himself in the woods, and who had been met by Bronson on his visit to Elwood, and informed of Gordon's situation, had conveyed to him brandy and tools wherewith to effect his escape. Fenton was induced to do this at a great risk to himself, for the fear that Gordon would inform upon them; and from the fact that he was without any of the booty himself, and was entirely destitute, and with the hope that through Gordon he might be supplied. Bronson had given him a few dollars, pretending it was a charitable relief, though they both understood each other—and that the money was in aid of Gordon's escape.

Gordon's illness, since he obtained the liquor, induced Pike to believe that he had become more reconciled to his situation, which made the jailer less wary. Instead, however, of instantly setting about preparing the means of escape, Gordon, as soon as the brandy was given him, drank deeply, and has been partially intoxicated ever since.

As Gordon lay in drunken sensuality, in a corner of his cell, his wife could not see him, owing to the contrast of the little light within, to the glare without, which she had just left. Several times she ejaculated, "John! dear John!" before he spoke to her.

He had observed her, however, from the first, and had his eye fixed on her with sullen anger.

"Come at last, have you?" he growled out, raising himself upon his arm; and frowning on her with sullen anger.

"John, I came as soon as I could. — How are you John?—dear John, ain't you well?"

"Well—by G—! Do you expect a man to be well here! Have you got any money?"

"Yes, John; here's five dollars."

"Is it counterfeited?"

"No, John, no."

"Then give it me, I'll have no counterfeits. You've ruined me by counterfeits. That's the way Ross got me."

"John, Mr. Mason, the lawyer, will attend to your case. I've seen him, and talked to him about you."

"Ha! will he—that right; ask him to come and see me."

"I think," she continued, "that I can interest Mr. Pickney for you too."

"Blast him," exclaimed Gordon; "Come closer—let me whisper to you."

"Catharine secretly took a seat by Gordon on the edge of the mattress.

"He's the chap, if you must know it, who had my twin brother punished for robbing him—my twin brother; he just made him deliver one night in the streets—never touched a hair of his head; but no matter, I'll do for him yet if I get out of this scrape."

"Yes, John, and was that the reason, replied Catharine, "that you made me take his likeness from Miss Clara?"

"No! I got that for that Italian woman, who loved him; she paid well for it—but what's that to you! What about the lock, hey?"

"Nothing, John; nothing! I thought I'd ask you. I think Miss Clara Arthur would do something for you, too, John!"

"Would she—ah! do you think she would?" exclaimed the prisoner, eagerly catching the thought. "Tell me—I know it, he's privately married to Mr. Ashley; she ran off to this country; she doesn't want it known, hey?"

"Never John; never!" exclaimed Catharine.

"I heard so," continued Gordon; "I called to see her to sell a horse to her, and meant to talk round—but she did not seem to know what to make of me, and left her. Think she will help me! There was something there."

"Mr. Ashley fought with another gentleman on her account, and was killed—that's all, John; but, John, I wish, O! I wish you could get out of this. — She says—"

"You've seen her," said Gordon, in a low, compressed tone.

"I have, John."

"What did she say?" he replied in a manner meant to be insinuating.

"Why, John—O God! but I'll tell the truth; that Mr. Mason says there's not much chance for you, John; but there is; I'll see them all, and beg for you—court, jury, all!"

"No chance! where do you live? you're dressed well; see how I look! Where do you live?"

"I live with Miss Clara, John," replied his wife, in a deprecating tone, alarmed at the angry earnestness with which he asked his questions.

"Live with her, and she my enemy & I here!" he exclaimed, grasping her wrist with manacled hands, and maddened with drunkenness and rage.

"John," said she imploringly, in a low voice, "do me no wrong here; it will only injure you. John, they'll know it; it will make your case worse."

"Worse! you have betrayed me; you told your Miss Clara about the lock, —"

"John, but it was for your sake!"

"Ha! for my sake!" he muttered, pressing her to the floor, with his hand upon her throat.

"John, when—O God! don't kill me, John, I'll help—I—for the love of mercy!"

As Catharine ejaculated her mortal terror, Gordon pressed her throat the tighter, the fear that she would be overheard giving vigor to his revenge.

She gathered her whole strength, and succeeded in disengaging his hand from her throat.

"John, this is not a hanging matter, this counterfeiting; you may escape if you don't murder me, John."

As she spoke, she half arose, and got her body from the bed. He seized her at this instant by the arm, and jerked her down with such violence as to strike her head with stunning force upon the floor. Gnashing his teeth with demoniac hate, and with a momentary supernatural strength, arising from his fury and the brandy he had swallowed, he twisted the iron bar which joined together the manacles on his wrists round her throat, and pained by the effort, fell prostrate by her side.

The scene of that horrible night, when in his excited fancy he sold himself to the evil one, now revived like a fearful reality in the brain of Gordon, and he heard Ross laugh, and the tempter claim him.

In accents almost inarticulate from intoxication and guilt, he called on his wife again and again to look at him and smile; and he tried to loosen the bar from her throat, and begged her to pray for him, and he put his ear to her lips and heard no voice and felt no breath.

Cursing her again, he twisted the bar closer, and sank senseless on her bosom—that bosom which had always cherished him; and there he lay, her murderer.

CHARITY.
"I fear," said a country curate to his flock, "when I explained to you, in my last charity sermon, that philanthropy was the love of our 'species,' you must have understood me to say species which may account for the smallness of the collection. You will prove, I hope, by your present contribution, that you are no longer laboring under the same mistake."

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES.
The undersigned proposes, as a future occupation, to publish, semi-monthly, a cheap newspaper, to be called KENDALL'S EXPOSITOR. Should the Administration be sustained in the present conflict, as his faith in the people persuades him to believe, there is still much to be done to secure the advancement and perpetuity of pure principles in our Government; and if perchance it shall be defeated, there will be more occasion for all honest efforts to prevent the mischief apprehended from the men who may come into power.

To these objects the undersigned has determined to devote the remainder of his life; and he can think of no means through which he can act so efficiently, as a newspaper cheap enough to be within the reach of every man who is able to read. Raised to labor on a farm he has never ceased to cherish the interests of those who work for a living; and, knowing them to be the most virtuous and deserving portion of society, one of the most cherished desires of his heart is to see them aroused to the importance of giving more of their reading, their thoughts, and their time, to the affairs of Government. Yet, not to them exclusively, but also all other men who do not seek to obtain, through the laws, advantages over their fellow men he will address himself in the proposed publication. The main objects noticed in this paper will be as follows, viz:

1. Suffrage is the basis of free government. He that cheats at elections is guilty of the worst kind of treason and should be punished as a traitor. He who gives utterance to a falsehood, for the purpose of influencing a voter, is but little better. To denounce cheating, bribery, and falsehood, when detected, and suggest effective preventives, will be a leading object of the proposed paper. In this the undersigned does not intend to be any respecter of parties; for the man who resorts to means for the accomplishment of political ends, whatever he may call himself, is no Democrat, and is an enemy to the people.
2. Abuses of privilege and corruption have made much progress in the legislative department of our Government, and have occasionally shown themselves in other departments. These as far as are known will be denounced; by whatever party they may be practiced. In every abuse of privilege, or undue exercise of power, the individual committing it strikes a blow at public virtue, the only lasting basis of free institutions.
3. The principles of modern banking and the manner in which banks and public debts operate upon the labor, trade, and property of the community are not well understood. One of the chief objects of this paper will be by facts and illustrations, to make these matters plain to all who will read and discuss the proposed remedies for existing evils. This will involve an exposition of the nature and uses of money, together with a history of the origin, progress, and effects of paper money in Europe and America.

To these will be added a notice of all new discoveries and inventions which promise to be useful to mankind, as also facts, experiments, and improvements which may be instructive to the farmer and mechanic; a summary of news foreign and domestic, carefully compiled, constituting an accurate history of passing events; abstracts of important public documents, and miscellaneous matter selected and original instructive and entertaining. In fine the objects is to furnish a newspaper which will present to the farmer, planter, mechanic, merchant and all other readers, the true interests of those who live by the cultivation of the soil and other laborious occupations, involving the interest of all useful trade, and incite them always to regard those interests, in voting for public agents, to inculcate that honesty and truth should be the guide of every man in public as well as private life; that a sacred regard for the rights of property, as well as personal rights, is essential to the happiness of man in a state of society; that it is only through a fair ballot that we should look for the correction of existing evils, and the prevention of those we fear; and that a true democrat should never think of revolution by force until he finds himself deprived of the right of suffrage, or the voice of the majority is perseveringly stifled by fraud or force at the polls.

Though, thoroughly Democratic in principle, this paper will not be made the vehicle of ordinary electioneering matter, nor will it engage in or admit mere personal controversies. It will not conceal its preferences for men or parties; but will seek to influence results only by appeals to reason, and through the instrumentality of fact and argument.

That a true Democrat ought never to despair, is the first article in the undersigned's political creed. Men are capable of indefinite improvement in knowledge and virtue. These are the bases of Democracy. If we know that we cannot reach perfection, we also know that he may become better than he is. Hope and faith are the motives of the Christian teacher. They should be the stay and stimulus of the Democrat. With him they are strengthened by knowledge; for he reads and knows that man is advancing, and may be made to advance more rapidly, in all those acquisitions which enable him to govern himself. If arrested by force or fraud to-day, he will resume his onward march to-morrow. By degrees the great mass of men are becoming acquainted with their rights and conscious of their power; that none will attempt to deceive them, and so determined, that none will care to assail by force. To aid in the improvement of men is the highest remaining ambition of the undersigned. He has seen much of the world, has had some experience in public affairs, has witnessed some wrong human depravity, suffered some wrong and met with much discouragement exertions for the good of his country and his race; but never for a moment has he lost his faith in man's high destiny, or relaxed his determination to contribute to his advancement under all discouragements. If he shall reap no personal advantage from this course, beyond a consciousness of doing his duty, his children, his children's children, and myriads of human beings hereafter to live, may, by his example and labors, however humble and feeble be made more intelligent and more happy. At any rate, in this glorious hope he intends to labor, live, and die.

AMOS KENDALL.
Washington, Oct. 24, 1840.

TERMS OF KENDALL'S EXPOSITOR.
The Expositor will be printed in the neatest manner upon a royal sheet, folded in octavo form, each number making sixteen pages, with an index at the end of each volume embracing one year. It will thus constitute a book containing a history of passing events, with discussions upon the important questions of human right and public policy, and may be bound for preservation.

Price one dollar per annum, paid in advance. No paper will be sent until the cash be received and at the end of the term subscribed for, every paper will be discontinued unless a new term be previously paid for. Bank notes of every description will be received at their specie value.

The first number will be issued about the middle of January next.

The meeting of Congress will afford a good opportunity to send on subscriptions by members.

Postmasters are authorized by law to regulate to send money to Editors in letters written by themselves.

All letters to the Editor must be free of postage paid.

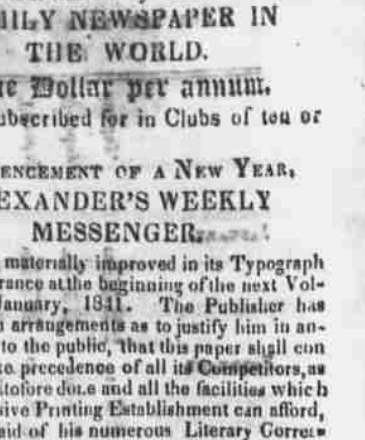

Subscriptions will be received at the Globe office.

He is prepared to make to order all kinds of CABINET WARE, that is in common use in this country, which he warrants to be made in the best manner and of good materials, and on the most reasonable terms.

A lot of Cabinet furniture always on hand. He is also prepared with the necessary materials for making and conveying GOFFINS safely to any part of the country where he may be called to attend on the shortest notice.

WM. RICKETS.

SESSION OHIO STATESMAN.
We propose to issue the STATESMAN, during the ensuing session of the Ohio Legislature on the following terms, viz:

TRI-WEEKLY	2 00
SEMI-WEEKLY	1 50
WEEKLY	1 00

Persons subscribing, will please designate which paper it is that they desire.

The approaching session of the Ohio Legislature, will be one of more than usual interest to all parties. The Corwin administration will be in progress—his inaugural will have developed his measures, or rather the measures of the Bankers and Abolitionists that elected him, and in whose hands he is.

When these measures are presented to the Legislature by Governor Corwin, as it is his duty by the constitution, the tug of war will commence in the Legislature; and, for the first time for years, the people will have an opportunity of seeing what the principles of whiggery really are in practice, and a fair comparison can be made between the doctrines of the two parties, touching the great interests of equal rights and constitutional government.

We shall have good reporters, and use what industry we are capable of employing on our paper, to give a correct and extensive view of all their doings; and the first curious item will be a law reducing the salaries of all the officers in the State, as promised to the people. The next will be, to raise the wages of labor; increase the price of wheat and pork; introduce the negroes fresh from Kentucky into our courts as witnesses, and into our common schools; but not into our Colleges where Bankers' children congregate. All these hard cider and coin skin movements will be recorded with care and precision, and when necessary, made into first rate Tippecanoe songs, and sung to keep the members' spirits up.

And the scheme already foisted, as we are informed, to chain down the people by a great Bank machinery, more powerful than the throne of the Russian Autocrat, will be watched with due care. Let the people read and judge for themselves.

The proceedings of Congress will also be duly given as heretofore.

THE PHILADELPHIA CASKET
UNPARALLELED SUCCESS
PROSPECTUS OF A NEW VOLUME.
The great success in the subscription list of the Casket since the first of the year, warrants the most extensive improvements on the first of July next at which time a new volume will be commenced with increased vigor. (Nothing need be said of the firm basis on which the Casket stands it being already the oldest magazine in the country.)

TYPE—EMBELLISHMENTS.
The Casket is printed with a clear and silvery type, upon the finest white paper. The illustrations are not only numerous, but of the highest order, and are executed by the most skillful and experienced engravers at home or abroad, and besides the monthly steel engraving (encompassed) of colored plate engravings have lately been added. The style of these embellishments is unequalled, and they are always accompanied with an apt sketch. No wood cuts disgrace the work; whatever appears in the Casket is of the first order of the art.

LITERARY CHARACTER.
The literary character of the Casket is well known. It is wholly original, of the highest order, and sustained by WRITERS OF THE FIRST RANK. Essays, Tales, Sketches and Travels, compose its prominent prose articles; while the poetry is equalled by that of no other magazine of like character. The variety for which the Casket is celebrated, shall suffer no diminution; but on the contrary, every exertion shall be made to increase its interest.

SEVERAL ROMANCES OF THE REVOLUTION have already appeared, and others shall follow in the course of the volume, presenting when finished, a complete picture of the manner and a historical account of the great battles at that time. Thus, the Casket, instead of being filled with sickly sentimentalities, aims at a true delineation of human nature in every variety of passion.

TIME OF PUBLICATION.
The Casket is published on the first of the month in every quarter of the Union. The most distant subscribers consequently receive it on that day, as well as those who reside in Philadelphia. In all the principal cities agents have been established, by which means subscribers can obtain their copies free of postage.

FASHIONS.
The fashioners are published in the Casket quarterly, or as often as any really new styles arrive from Paris. The engravings are colored, and copied from original designs. No old worn out plates resuscitated, and then published as the latest fashions. The truth of our designs may be tested by comparing them with the best descriptions of dresses from London and Paris.

TERMS—Three Dollars per annum, or two copies for Five Dollars. Published by GEO. R. GRAHAM, 36 Carters Alley, Philad.

COMMENCEMENT OF A NEW YEAR.
ALEXANDER'S WEEKLY MESSENGER.

Will be materially improved in its Typographical appearance at the beginning of the next Volume, in January, 1841. The Publisher has made such arrangements as to justify him in announcing to the public, that this paper shall continue to take precedence of all its Competitors, as it has heretofore done, and all the facilities which his Extensive Printing Establishment can afford, with the aid of his numerous Literary Correspondents, at home and abroad, shall be united to make the WEEKLY MESSENGER still more satisfactory to its thirty-five thousands of patrons distributed as it is, throughout every section of the Union. Every exertion will be used to keep equal pace with the advancement which is constantly making in the character of the Newspaper Press, and the Publisher pledges himself that his Journal shall, in all its departments, afford to its readers a full and comprehensive view of the important events, which are continually transpiring in our own Country and the European World. The actual fact is, that the WEEKLY MESSENGER is just such a Newspaper as persons living out of large Cities, require, and will be pleased to receive—and the Publisher, after an association of twenty years with the Newspaper Press, pledges himself that his Journal shall not be excelled, either as respects its moral and literary reputation, or the early dissemination of news and other important and useful information. "Go-a-head" is his principle, and he has never failed to carry it out to the fullest extent.

The WEEKLY MESSENGER is published every Wednesday, on a beautiful white sheet, of the largest class. Single copies are forwarded to subscribers every week during the year for two dollars, in advance—or ten persons, clubbing together, can have it for the same period by forwarding the publisher a ten dollar note, free of postage, which is less than any paper of the same size can be furnished by any other office in the United States.

A variety of beautiful engravings will be given in regular succession, which will be accompanied by appropriate Sketches, of such description as to render them particularly deserving the attention of the public.

OVER THIRTY THOUSAND.
With the immense circulation that has been received for the WEEKLY MESSENGER, during this four years past, since its commencement, we are bold to say, that no paper has ever been distributed to the same number of patrons with fewer causes of complaint. In fact, we have the most careful and trust worthy Clerks now in our employ, and no inducements are withheld to make them attentive and systematic in the discharge of their various duties; therefore, persons subscribing for the Paper at a distance, may rely on receiving it regularly and punctually by the due course of the mail.

All the contemporary WEEKLY Press in the Atlantic cities head their subscriptions papers with the imposing caption: "THE LARGEST AND CHEAPEST!" Now, we propose that any person who cannot satisfy himself after one year's trial, that the WEEKLY MESSENGER is emphatically what we have said, it is, therefore is best entitled to patronage, that we will confer on every one making such discovery, a free subscription for the space of another Year.

IF at the expiration of the term subscribed and paid for, by Clubs, The paper is invariably discontinued, unless the Subscribers are renewed. All letters must be Post Paid, or they will not be taken out of the Post Office.—Address,

CHARLES ALEXANDER,
Athenian Buildings, Franklin Place, Philadelphia.
